Steps 1. If you have access to an iPhone or Android device, you may be able to take a photo with the camera built-in. If you don't have access to such an iOS device, you can still use the app in this tutorial. 2. If you want to take your photo in the app and then make changes, you can either click the "1" button to open the camera app or select "Use Photo." 3. Pick a photo you want to use and click the arrow on the bottom to open the photos app. You can then take a picture and select it or send it to yourself from the camera roll. 4. Select a subject in the photo and click and drag to draw a selection around it. You can click the box around the selection to make it fill with black. Click the box again to make the selection transparent. 5. Now that you have a selection, you can go to the properties and select the erase mode to hide the selection area. In most cases, you'll want to use a selection tool to erase the selection. Select the eraser tool and pick it up. You'll see three options: 100%, 50%, and 0%. If the box surrounding the area is almost transparent but not entirely, don't use the 100% option. Instead, use 50%. If the box is completely white, go with the 0% option. 6. Click the "Backspace" key to clear the selection and remove it. If you did your work well, the box should be completely white. 7. Move the selection tool and click the area where you want to place the new subject. 8. Click the icon in the bottom-left corner to bring up the brush panel. Select a brush and use it to paint a new subject on the canvas. If you want to paint outside the selection area, be sure to select the marquee tool and click outside the original selection. 9. Click the eye icon at the top of the viewfinder to make it larger. Drag your mouse over the image to make minor adjustments to the composition. 10. Save the file. You've now learned how to paint a subject on top of a photo and remove the background. 11. Open Photoshop to find your file. Select File > Open and find the file you just created in the photoshop application. 12. Select Edit > Clone to duplicate the layer. 13.

Small-business lending Career Center Stories Small business lending How to Borrow Money for Your Small Business Whether you are just starting your business or planning on expanding your service offerings, you may want to consider a loan. Finding a funding source may be challenging for a new business, especially if you don't already have a track record and you don't know anyone who would be willing to finance you. Despite the challenge, there are options, including grants, tax credits, and a variety of private sources. Many small-business owners seek private funding to ensure that they don't have to take out a loan from a bank or other lender at the wrong time for their business. Perhaps you need funding to prepare for a major expansion, buy new equipment, or just to pay for something that will keep you at work and keep customers coming back for more. Whatever your needs, there are options. Small-Business Loans Small-business loans are a critical ingredient in the small business funding mix. The loan types available include business owner's, equity, asset-based, and revolving. Business owner's loans are often called owner's equity or carry-along loan, and can be used by the owner, an investor, or as part of a loan package involving several individual owners or lenders. The business owner, an individual partner, or a couple may use the money to buy equipment, expand a line of business, or hire more staff. The purpose of the loan is to create equity in the business and create buying power among owners. The owner's equity loan is often easier to access than bank loans because the banks require a personal guarantee for the loan. Owner's loans are collateral free, meaning there is no need to use personal collateral to secure the loan. Equity is the amount of money you put up to own the business. It is often thought of as the "bread" of a business. The business owner puts in the equity, the business generates the revenue, and when the business turns a profit, the owner gets back their money. The name for equity often reflects the percentage of equity that is put up. For example, if the business owner puts down 30 percent of the value of the business, the owner will have an equity stake of 30 percent. The cost of the owner's equity (the interest rate) has to be taken into account when calculating the amount

Promote Your Services: 8 Simple Strategies You Can Use Today Many business owners and professionals feel compelled to create beautiful websites and brochures, as well as compelling business cards with logo, adding design elements to the outside of business envelopes, and using a toll-free number. Unfortunately, as much as we feel these elements are important, it can often feel as though we simply add them to make ourselves feel better about being a business owner. But business owners and professionals who think this way really miss the opportunity to promote their services and brand to potential customers. Doing these simple things can result in a huge increase in your business' visibility and help you to build a reputation that people notice and talk about. So, how can you take the next step and start promoting your business? Well, below are 8 simple things that you can do today to begin promoting your business. 1. Maintain a Blog Blogs are an essential part of your business' marketing, whether you have a single blog or multiple blogs. This is because they provide a place to provide useful information, connect with readers, and build a personal brand and reputation. Don't believe me? Well, here are some facts... Blogs get 94% of the traffic to the websites they're posted on. Blogs receive a 25.5% of all the search traffic to a website. Blogs give websites the authority to rank in search engine results. Blogs have a higher click-through rate than a website. Blogs produce a higher conversion rate and are more likely to generate sales. Blogs are getting more popular with each passing day. Here are some stats: 58% of all business owners with blogs receive sales leads. 49% of all businesses with a blog generate revenue from online leads. Blogs work well for anyone who needs to build a brand and earn some money. Blogging is also a great way to make money online, as it's so easy to create a quality blog, and once it's up and running, it can make you an income over the long-term. So, if you haven't yet set up a blog, now is the perfect time. And if you've already got one, you need to find out what works best for you, how
